Peterborough Community Savings is Offering Small Business Microloans to Entrepreneurs in Kawartha Lakes Region

Part of national study to meet needs of underbanked minorities

[Peterborough, ON] – Peterborough Community Savings (PCS) has joined seven other credit unions from across the United States and Canada to provide microfinance loans and financial education to underbanked entrepreneurs. The effort is part of an initiative through the Filene Research Institute, a U.S.-based independent, consumer finance think and do tank. Funded by Visa and the Ford Foundation, five financial programs are being tested with thirty-five credit unions to help close the financial service access gap for financially vulnerable populations.

Access to credit is the largest challenge facing entrepreneurs, as many financial institutions see small businesses as too risky or not profitable enough to lend to. The challenge is even greater for minority owned small businesses that are disproportionality denied credit (31.5%) when compared to non-minority counterparts (12.3%). The Community Microfinance Small Business Lending program being implemented by PCS seeks to support financially vulnerable entrepreneurs by coupling small business microloans with business education.

"Access to affordable credit not only benefits Peterborough Community Savings' small business owning members, but also our community at large," said Beth Bruesch, President, Peterborough Community Savings. "Ensuring local businesses thrive contributes to the economic stability of our communities. PCS was founded on a principal belief that we put community needs first, and supporting locally owned businesses has a significant impact on the health and prosperity of those in Peterborough and the surrounding region," adds Beth.

PCS implemented the Community Microfinance Small Business Lending program as part of their operations as of January 1, 2017. Microloans and financial literacy education are now being delivered to qualifying consumers. Results of the program will be compiled along with data from other credit union testers with the goal of determining the program's potential to scale nationally.

The Community Microfinance program was originally established by Alterna Savings and Credit Union Ltd., an Ontario based credit union which operates in the greater Toronto and Ottawa regions. Originally established in 2000, the Alterna Savings program has provided over $3.6 million in microloans to over 700 individuals and organizations with a repayment rate of 96%. Research partnerships with Carleton University and University of Toronto have helped to quantify the impact of the program, which has led to improved community economic development, higher quality of life for recipients and their families, reduced reliance on government assistance programs, and increased resilience in tougher economic times.

Community members who are interested in learning more about the program can contact Karen Mask at 705-748-4481 or karen@peterboroughcs.ca.
